Late Foreign Intelligence.

Translated for the Mercantile Advertiser.

Bordeaux, June 4.

The Barcelona volunteers forming the first column of Spanish troops on their way to join our army entered this city yesterday morning. General Cabatier, accompanied by his staff, and escorted by a piquet of cavalry, went to meet this corps, and no military honors used on similar occasions have been omitted in welcoming this regiment, which notwithstanding the long route it had performed, appeared to be in fine order. A number of persons, attracted by curiosity, had assembled on the passage of our allies, who must have discovered on all their countenances the pleasure they felt at seeing them.

Lubeck, May 20.

The king of Sweden since his arrival at Stralsund where he alighted at gen. Esen's is continually dispatching couriers on diverse points, but especially towards the French headquarters. The hopes of a complete reconciliation with France have been received with rapture by every Swedish officer. The conditions of the armistice are executed in the most scrupulous manner. An English brig which had anchored in the road, having shewn an intention to land a few men under various pretences, it has been declared on the part of the Swedish commandant, that any Englishman who should dare to violate the neutral territory of Pomerania would be arrested and disarmed.

The Russians suffered much at the engagement of the 15th opposite to Dantzic from the terrible fire of the French light cavalry. They pretend that the Prussians have not done their duty, and the latter say the same thing of the Russians.

French Grand Army, seventy fifth Bulletin.

Finkenstein, 18th May, 1807.

The following are the details of the 15th.

The 15th. After two in the morning general Schramm was in action covered by the redoubts constructed near the fort Weichselmunde in his centre, the 12th regiment of light infantry on his right, and the regiment of Paris for a reserve.

The Russian lieutenant general Kameniski, sailed from the fort at day break. After an action of two hours the arrival of the 12th regiment of infantry which marshal Lefebvre sent to the left bank, and a Saxon battalion decided the affair. Of the brigade of Oudinot only a single battalion could engage.

The three hundred Saxons gave way—an extraordinary circumstance, and which must be the result of some machinations for the Saxon troops since they were joined to the French have always conducted with bravery; this unlooked for circumstance put the 1st regiment of Bavarian line in a critical situation; it lost one hundred and fifty men who were made prisoners and beat a retreat which, nevertheless was conducted without disorder. The enemy retook the village of Couth.

Our loss has been trifling—a Polish col. M. Paris was killed; the loss of the enemy is more than we thought; nine hundred Russian bodies have been interred; the loss of the enemy could not be less than 2,500 men. At present the enemy does not move but seems extremely circumspect behind their fortifications. Fourteen boats have sailed with wounded men.

On the 14th a division of five thousand Russians and Prussians, but chiefly Prussians from Königsberg left Pillau on the neck of land called the Nehrung, and arrived at Rahlberg before our advanced posts of the guard of light cavalry who fell back towards Turtenswerden.

The enemy approached towards the extremity of Freisce-haff; we expected to see them penetrate that way to Dantzic. A bridge thrown over the Vistula at Prus-tenswerden facilitated the passage of the infantry stationed on the isle of Nogat to the file on the rear of the enemy; but the Prussians were better advised and dare not venture. The emperor gave orders to general Beaumont, aid-de-camp to the grand duke of Berg, to attack the 16th at two in the morning. The general proceeded with the gen. of brigade Albert at the head of the battalion of grenadiers of reserve, the 2d and 11th regiment of Chasseurs and one brigade of dragoons. He encountered the enemy between Passenauorder and Siege. At day break attacked, overturned and pursued them sword in hand for eleven leagues, took 1100 men, killed a great number and seized on four pieces of cannon.

The 3d and 11th regiment of chasseurs charged with great intrepidity. We have had a captain of the 3d regiment and five or six men killed and eight or ten wounded. Two brigades of the enemy which came on the Haff, came to harass us: a shell which burst on the deck of one of them made them sheer off; thus since the 12th the enemy at different points has sustained considerable loss. The enemy received on the 17th the fusiliers of the guard which are encamped at the castle of Finkenstein, in as good barracks as those of Boulogne.

On the 18th and 19th all the guard will be encamped in the same place.

The 12th, prince Jerome learning that a column of 3000 men had sortied from Glatz to surprize Breslau, he sent general Lefebvre with the first regiment, 100 horse and a detachment of 700 Saxons. General Lefebvre attacked the rear the 14th at 4 in the morning. The village of Couth, he attacked also and carried it at the point of the bayonet and made one hundred and fifty prisoners.

One hundred of the king of Bavaria's light horse cut to pieces the cavalry of the enemy, 500 strong, and dispersed them. nevertheless, the enemy placed themselves in line of battle and made resistance.

At 11 in the forenoon, general Dumoy, who went from Breslau at the head of 1000 French dragoons, chasseurs, and hussars on foot, who had been sent from Silesia to be mounted, and of which a part already were, attacked the enemy in the rear. 500 hussars on foot carried the village of Couet at the point of the bayonet, made 100 prisoners, and retook all the Bavarians who had been made prisoners. The enemy, to re-enter Glatz with more facility, separated into two columns; general Lefebvre, who left Schwelldnitz the 17th, fell upon one of these columns, killed 400 men, and made 300 prisoners, 30 of which were officers.

The second column of the enemy sought to gain Glatz by Silberberg, lieutenant colonel Ducondrais, aid de camp to the prince, encountered and put them to flight. Thus the column of 3 to 4000 men, which left Glatz, could not re-enter; they have all been killed, wounded or taken prisoners.

Grand Army, seventy fifth Bulletin.

Finkenstein, May 20.

A beautiful English sloop of war, coppered, carrying 24 guns and 120 men, and loaded with powder and bullets, appeared before the city of Dantzic. When arrived in the midst of our works, she was assailed by a brisk cannonade from both shores, and obliged to strike. A piquet of men from the Paris regiment were the first who leaped on board. An aid de camp of general Kalkreuth from the Russian headquarters, besides many English officers were taken on board. The sloop of war is called the Fearless. Independently of the 120 English, there were 60 Russians in this vessel.

The loss of the enemy at the battle of Weichselmunde on the 15th, was greater than was at first supposed, a whole Russian column which extended along the sea was put to the bayonet. According to accounts we have buried 1300 Russian dead bodies.

The 6th, a division of 7000 Russians, commanded by gen. Tuckows, marched from the Brok, on the Bug, on Pultusk, to oppose itself to the new works which had been ordered to render the head of the brigade more respectable. These works were defended by six battalions of Bavarians, commanded by the prince royal of Bavaria. The enemy made six attacks. In all they were repulsed by the Bavarians, and completely cut to pieces by the different batteries. Marshal Masséna estimates the loss of the enemy at three hundred killed and double that wounded. What renders the affair more brilliant is, that the Bavarians had 4000 men less.

The prince royal bestows particular praise on baron de Wreden, a general officer in the service of Bavaria and of distinguished merit.

The loss of the Bavarians was 16 men killed and 150 wounded.

There was as much absurdity in the attack made on the works of gen. Lemarrois on the 18th and in the attack of the 16th on Pultusk, as there was 6 weeks ago in the construction of the great number of rafts which the enemy threw up on the Bug. The result has been, that those rafts, which cost six weeks labor, were burnt in two hours whenever we felt disposed to do so, and that those successive attacks against well defended works, and sustained by good batteries, caused them great losses without any hopes of profit.

It would appear that the object of these assurances was to draw the attention of the French army towards their right; but the positions of the French army, defensive as well as offensive, are well grounded in all their bases and in all their hypotheses.

During all this time, the interesting siege of Dantzic continues to go on. The enemy will experience a very serious injury in losing this important place, and the 20 000 men which are shut up therein. A mine was sprung on Blackhouse, which caused it to be blown up. We opened on the road covered by four decoys, and executed the descent of the ditch.

ERRATA.

In the 77th bulletin of the French Grand Army, published yesterday, first paragraph, line 7th, for Prague (which is in Bohemia) read Prag; and in line 10th, for final, read "the finest fruit of the victory of Eylau."

BY THIS DAY'S MAIL.

NEW YORK, July 31.

Latest from Europe.

The arrival of the schooner Hope at Boston, in 34 days from Nantes, furnishes Paris papers to the 15th of June, seven days later than were received at this port by the Sassan. They give no account of any engagement between the armies of Russia and France, and bring only from the latter the 77th bulletin. We have subjoined the principal articles of intelligence, as detailed in the Boston papers.

LONDON, May 20.

Sir Sidney Smith is on his return home, on board the Pompey, of 80 guns.

Orders have just been given at Plymouth to dispatch to sea without delay all the ships in that port, which are in readiness for sailing. It is asserted that government has received intelligence that a French squadron has lately left Brest, and escaped the vigilance of our cruisers, whilst a great part of the Channel fleet had put into Torbay.

Mr. Thornton has just set off on board an extraordinary packet dispatched for the object of his mission is important, which may be judged of from the quickness with which he is sent off. It is said he is going to Memel in order to make remonstrances to the Prussian cabinet relative to the negotiations which have been opened. The conduct likewise of the king of Sweden is also more than suspicious.

Letters from Portsmouth mention, that on the 28th May, Admiral Duckworth and sir Charles Arbuthnot landed from on board the Royal George. Sir Charles Arbuthnot appears to be very ill.

The elections in Ireland continue to be very contrary to the ministerial party.

June 4.

Gen. Beresford has arrived from the river of Plate.

The grand expedition is delayed sailing to await the arrival of lord Melville from Scotland.

Admiral Duckworth and Mr. Arbuthnot have been introduced to the king.

TRANSLATIONS.

PARIS, June 5.

Intelligence from Janina, of the 25th of April, received on the 25th May, at Paris, states, that the Turks have gained a signal victory over the Russian navy in the Black Sea; that the soldiers of the latter nation, who had embarked at Corfu, in order to make incursions on the territory of the pacha of Janina, had been all either repulsed or killed; many heads of officers, it is added, were sent in bags to Constantinople.

The English at Egypt—Letters from Leghorn and in short from every port in Italy, mention that the English have been defeated in Egypt by the Turks and Arabs united. The particulars of this event are not yet come to hand, but it is beyond a doubt that several fast sailing sloops have arrived in the ports of Sicily, with orders to the commander of the English troops in that island to embark for Egypt all those still remaining there. Similar orders have been received at Malta, where all the disposable troops are getting on board transports. The English government are resolved to be masters of Egypt, cost what it may, in consequence of which a new expedition is expected in the Mediterranean from England.

There is certain intelligence arrived that the English army landed at Alexandria under the command of general Fraser, was completely beaten by the Turks at the moment when it was endeavoring to advance into Egypt, and that it was so hard pressed in its precipitate retreat, that gen. Frazer had already dispatched three frigates successively to the governor of Malta in order to demand succors from him.

Petersburgh, May 10.

Our commercial affairs with Great Britain are yet in an unsettled situation.

Berlin, May 19.

A letter announces that the city of Leibstadt has been burnt to ashes by a fire which commenced in the house of marshal Soult. His head quarters were held in that city.

Triest, May 18.

Intelligence has been received from Egypt which states, that the body of English troops which had landed in that country were under the greatest embarrassment; the greatest part of the Beys, as well as all the inhabitants, having declared for the Porte and France. It is also known that after the retreat of the English squadron, which appeared before Constantinople, different bodies of troops which were in Syria, received orders to return to Egypt, in order to oppose the English, whose designs on the possessions of the Porte were foreseen. Hence there is every reason for believing that the latter cannot long maintain themselves in Egypt, even when they receive reinforcements from Sicily.

The death of Elif Bey has deprived them of the sole support they had in that country.

May 30.

The port of Tunis is blockaded anew by the Americans.

Frankfurt, May 28.

It is asserted that the court of Vienna has just invited in the most pressing manner that of London to send plenipotentiaries to the congress which, it is said, will very shortly open in order to treat of the affairs of Europe and of the re-establishment of a general peace. It is thought that Baron Vincent will not make a long stay at Vienna, and that after having received new instructions from his government, he will repair to Berlin, where the centre of the negotiations will, it is thought, be established.

Augustine, May 21.

TOULON FLEET.—Letters which have been received here from Leghorn confirm the intelligence of the French fleet having sailed from Toulon. It is now cruising in the Mediterranean, and will, it is thought, set sail for the Adriatic Gulf, in order to drive the English and Russians from thence, and raise the blockade of Venice. It has already captured the English frigate and brig which were cruising off Toulon in order to observe its motions. Other intelligence states that the Spanish squadron of Carthage had likewise set sail, for the purpose of joining the Toulon fleet; should this be the case the allies will have very respectable forces in the Mediterranean.

Hamburgh, May 20.

The report that the armistice with Sweden was broken off, is entirely destitute of foundation. An exchange of prisoners is just proposed.

Lestog is appointed governor of Königsberg. Blucher commands the Prussian army in Poland.

May 30.

All our late letters are calculated to prepare us for news of a general battle, which is expected to take place between the 10th and 15th of June. Bennigsen is said to be ill. The Prussian major general Lauren was killed at Dantzic. Gen. Essen has quitted the Russian army on account of illness.

Hague, May 21.

Arrangements are making at Flushing as if the place was actually besieged. All the trees in the vicinity except fruit trees, have been ordered to be cut down, that they might not cover the approach of an enemy.

June 13.

The capitulation of the fortress of Neiss is announced as official.

General Lefebvre has been appointed hereditary duke of Dantzic, with an endowment in lands.

His Majesty the emperor arrived at Dantzic the 1st June. He slept on the preceding evening at the Abbey of Olliva.

his arrival his majesty reviewed the bodies of troops.

The Orient with 23 men has been of the Spartan British frigates one hundred men in the Englishmen were nearly all the Frenchman perished.

Vienna.

The Montenegro are preparing to fight against the French at Cattaro. We have a report again that the Montenegrins have been again defeated and obliged to raise the flag. The French general Marmont is going to form a corps of 10,000 men, to commence the campaign. The last messenger from Tauris has taken the Servian army has taken a position in the interior, and that hitherto nothing decisive on the part of the French so far.

Vienna, May 12.

The Montenegrins are preparing to fight against the French at Cattaro; and the Austrians to fight against the Montenegrins. We have a report again that the Russians have been again defeated before Ishmal, and obliged to raise the siege. The Greeks are said to be dissatisfied with the Russians.

The French general Marmont has gone to Ragusa to form a corps of fourteen thousand men, to commence the siege of Cattaro. Lauriston is gone to Bosnia.

The affairs in Turkey have suddenly assumed a very different aspect; after having published that the Servians had obtained great advantage, the Presburg Gazette says, that Czerui Georges was attacked near Widden by a large Ottoman corps, that he lost 8000 men killed or taken prisoners, and that he himself owed his escape only to the swiftness of his horse.

AN ORATION

DELIVERED ON THE 4TH OF JULY,

At the request of the Washington Society of Alexandria, by

J. H. THOMAS, Esq. of Fredericktown (M.)

Alexandria Daily Advertiser.

MONDAY, August 3.

Two very beautiful Sheep, have lately arrived at Arlington, from Smith's island. They are perfectly wild, and will not associate with the flock at the farm, are very fine boned, and run with great swiftness. The approach of winter will however domesticate them, and cause them to seek the protection of man. The fleece is as fine as can be imagined, of most delicate softness to the touch, and purely white. It nearly resembles the famous Spanish wool, except that the animals will yield three times as great a quantity. The sheep of the island are short twice a year, at which times they are driven into spaces enclosed on the one side and bounded by the sea on the other. After shearing they are set at liberty, and reassume their native wildness. The extent of the island is such that many are never taken, and live to a great age. The climate, pasturage, and constant access to salt, have no doubt greatly contributed to improve the fleece, together with many other causes, at present not known.

Actuated by a desire to further the cause of national manufacture, the editor has obtained a sample of this most valuable wool, and will be happy to distribute specimens to those who may be passing to a distance and who feel desirous of displaying the manufacturing materials of their native state. We shall have no objection to its going further, and visiting the seat of commercial monopoly, where it will convince the inhabitants of the old world, that we possess the means, and we will promise to use the measures, to render us independent of all nations. The bountiful hand of Providence has largely scattered its blessings for our use—Industry, and a sense of the wrongs we have received, will appropriate the gifts of nature to their proper purpose, and the American citizen shall proudly appear, when clothed in the produce of his native soil.

MR. SNOWDEN,

HAVING never been in the habit of reading the dirty columns of the Expositor, I have not seen or ever heard until last evening of a piece in that paper, wherein I am pointed out as the "only black sheep" at our late county meeting; there my name is not mentioned; but as I alone objected to some expressions in the resolutions then adopted, 'tis plain none else could be intended. For some time I was at a loss to know who the friend of the editor could be that furnished him with the piece for publication, as I was convinced no gentleman there could censure my conduct on the occasion; but on enquiry find his friend must have been one of Mr. Waggon-load of patriotic boys and hirelings, who conferred such a mighty honor on the General as he returned home, as I am informed the term of "only one black sheep at the meeting" was made use of at that time and on that occasion. Little do I care what such men and the editor think of me; but lest some gentlemen of my acquaintance should think I opposed that manly expression of indignation at the late outrage, and determination to support government in any measures it may adopt to obtain a reparation for the past and security for the future, I think proper to observe that it is well known to the meeting, I cordially approved of every sentiment of that kind; but could not in conscience approve every sentiment and expression in the preamble—nor could I say I had the "the highest confidence in government" when I disliked many of its most important acts.

I am, Sir,

With respect,

Yours,

July 31, 1807.

JOHN DULIN.

The account of lieutenant Pike and his party being cut off by the Indians is totally unfounded. The latest information, entitled to credit, states that his party, having missed their route, and passed from the red river to the Rio del Norte in the territory of Spain, had been arrested in their course in the month of Feb. by a detachment of Spanish troops, and taken to Santa Fe, and thence to Chihuahua, the residence of governor Salcedo, who had treated them with great attention, and given them liberty to return to the U. States.

[National Intelligencer.]

The latest intelligence from Europe has greatly increased the probability of a general peace.

The archduke, brother to the emperor of Austria, in an address to the states of Hungary, dwells on this interesting topic in a manner that can neither be mistaken nor neglected by the belligerent powers. The influence, which the emperor Napoleon has acquired in the cabinet of Austria, is clearly demonstrated in this address—and, combined with the spirit which France has been able to excite, against Russia, in Persia and Turkey, the temper of Austria cannot fail to dispose the emperor Alexander to listen to pacific overtures. Nor is it at all improbable that, to increase this disposition, the proposals of France will leave Russia in possession of her Polish provinces, as the emperor of France has never discovered much anxiety on that point.

Prussia must adopt the determination of Russia—and Sweden, in her late arrangements with France, has conceded much of her warlike declarations. The conduct of Baron Von Essen, who concluded an armistice with marshal Mortier, has been approved, and honor have been conferred on him by his Swedish majesty.

Whether Great-Britain would be willing to continue the contest single handed, and under the proscriptions, which France, in the event of a continental peace, would be able to establish against her throughout Europe, cannot be of difficult solution—That under such pressure, she should engage in a war with the United States, must be the last act of political despair.

[Phil. Register.]

From a London paper of May 18.

The report which was spread yesterday of an order which it was pretended had been given by the admiralty to seize all the American vessels which were in our ports, was without foundation. But we believe that instructions have been given to our cruisers to detain hereafter such American vessels as shall not be destined for England, or for the ports of which the British government has not expressly interdicted, the entry to their vessels by these instructions.

Further, the government of the U. States appear to yield at this moment and to shew amicable rather than hostile dispositions. President Jefferson has lately issued a proclamation, prolonging the importation of British goods, to the second Monday in December next. The treaty concluded between Great-Britain and the United States, has been sent back by the American government, to be revised, and submitted to a new discussion; and there is great appearance, that the difficulties will be amicably adjusted between the two nations.

Extract of a letter from Lexington (K.) to a gentleman of Chillicothe, dated July 15.

"Mr. Blannerhasset was arrested in this place yesterday, and Thomas Todd, circuit judge of the United States, has directed the marshal to take him on to the city of Richmond in Virginia, where he has been indicted for high treason. He is confined in the jail of this place, until the marshal is ready to proceed with him."

Extract of a letter from a British officer, to a gentleman in New York, dated July 14.

"I applied on my arrival here to vice admiral Lord Berkeley for leave of absence on my private affairs for two months, which he readily granted. I had good interest with him, the Rt. Rev. Dr. Ingliss the bishop of this province asked it as a favor. I had taken my passage and put my baggage on board an American ship that had been sent in here by one of our sloops of war, but was released immediately by the court of admiralty. While waiting a change of wind the Columbine sloop of war, Lord Townshend, arrived and brought the account of that distressing affair at Norfolk. The admiral sent his secretary to say, "that from the accounts he had received from the United States, it would be highly improper in him to suffer any British officer to go to any part of the United States; also added, he had no sort of doubt of an immediate rupture between the two countries." I pray heaven to prevent it as it will materially injure the trade of the two finest countries on earth. The commerce of England and America covers the ocean, and they are almost the only flags you'll meet on the ocean, then why go to war? Every thing here is in the most active state of preparation; in the king's dock yards all the hands work doubly hard, and every thing that can float is getting ready for sea. A number of furnaces for heating red hot balls have been shipped for the squadron in the Chesapeake and in short there are as active preparations on foot as if the war was actually declared. I heard a report this morning at the admiral's that there is an account of a small vessel having arrived at Windsor, about fifty miles from hence, from one of the southern ports of the United States, that says an embargo was actually laid on by the president of the U. S."

To Parents, Guardians, & Teachers,

JUST PUBLISHED,
BY COTTON AND STEWART,

ALEXANDRIA,

MAVOR'S

UNIVERSAL SPELLING-BOOK,
Accompanied by a progressive series of Easy and Familiar Lessons.

Intended as an Introduction to the first Elements of the English Language.

THE AUTHOR'S PREFACE.

NOTWITHSTANDING the vast number of introductory books for children in the Nursery, which have been written within these few years by persons of distinguished abilities and fancied with their names, it must still be allowed, that there has not appeared an introduction to Reading, for the general use of schools, that rises above the level of the vulgar, though popular, compilations of Dyche, Dilworth and Fennig. The superfluity has been attended to with judicious care; and writers of the first eminence have contributed to rear the fabric of learning, while the foundation has almost invariably been suffered to be laid, by the most idle and ignorant workmen. The consequence has frequently been, as might be expected from such a proceeding, that the taste has been vitiated at the very commencement; and it has often proved more difficult to remove error, than it would have cost pains to plant originally the principles of truth.

For the neglect we have alluded to, it would be impossible to produce any consistent reason. Perhaps the pride of acknowledged literature, could not stoop to an occupation reputed so mean, as that of compiling a Spelling Book. Yet to lay the first stone of a noble edifice, has ever been a task delegated to the most honorable hands; and to sow the first seeds of useful learning in the infant mind, is an employment which cannot be dis-graced to the most illustrious talents. Bishop Lowth wrote an excellent English grammar, and several men of rank in literature have benefited the public by similar productions; yet it is in vain that grammars are written, if no one has learned to read; it is in vain that the subtlest discoveries are made in any art or science, if the generality of the world are precluded from profiting by them, for want of previous instruction in the first principles with which they are connected.

The Editor of the following sheets is fully convinced of the solidity of his inferences and the justice of his remarks, in whatever light his present undertaking may be regarded. Humble or degrading as it may appear to those who, perhaps, have no higher pretensions than himself, he cannot think that labor dishonorable, which is so manifestly beneficial to the rising generation; not has he any reason to fear, but that the candid and judicious will appreciate his motives and his production as they deserve. Our sentiments and our conduct are more influenced by early impressions than many seem willing to allow. The stream will always flow directed by the nature of its source. A just maxim, a humane principle, a germ of knowledge early imbibed, will be permanent to the last. The first books we read can never be forgotten, nor the principles they inculcate, eradicated. Hence, in the prosecution of this work, care has been taken to make every lesson or essay, as far as the nature and intention of the plan would allow, tend to some useful purpose of information or instruction. Even in the more easy progressive lessons, where sense was limited to a single syllable, is hoped something will be found to please and to improve, nor will this be thought difficult. To tread in the steps of a Barbauld, a Jauffier, an Edgeworth, a Trimmer, a Berquin, and to accommodate their labors to the benevolent design in hand, only acquired a little taste and judgment, which any person long conversant with education and books ought to possess.

In short, the Editor feels inclined to believe, that this manual for early youth will be found much better adapted for the purpose than any that has preceded it; and in consequence he anticipates the kind patronage of Teachers in general. It probably will tend to facilitate their labour, by furnishing subjects more agreeable to the pupil, than the dry inanity of most books of the kind; and it cannot fail to redound to their credit also, by giving youth an opportunity of gaining as much general knowledge as could be crowded within the limits prescribed. Indeed it was a remark of the publisher, (to whom British youth are under singular obligations for furnishing them with many valuable opportunities of improvement) when he earnestly pressed this work on the Editor's attention "That a Spelling Book frequently contains the whole library of a poor child, unless when charity puts a bible into his hands, & it consequently ought to contain as great a variety of useful matter as the pit will permit." The compilation has been formed strictly on this principle.
